

TV licence

The law states you MUST have a TV licence if you want to watch television – including watching on a laptop, tablet or mobile. Watching TV without one is a criminal offence and could see you hit with a £1,000 fine. A colour licence costs £145.50 per year and you can split the cost weekly, monthly or yearly.

A breakdown of how you can pay can be found on the tv licencing website.
